Bio firm lands at Hopkins

The Forest City-New East Baltimore Partnership announced that BioMarker Strategies LLC, a Baltimore medical device and molecular diagnostics company, will move its headquarters to the first of five planned life science office buildings at the Science + Technology Park at Johns Hopkins, adjacent to the Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions? campus in East Baltimore. BioMarker Strategies will be the fifth tenant to locate in the 278,000-square-foot, state-of-the-art office research building, scheduled to open in April. The company is developing the SnapPath solid tumor cell processing and testing system to improve the diagnosis, treatment and clinical management of cancer.
